

PRE-CALL NURTURE SOP

A low show rate undoes everything else.

PRE-CALL NURTURE SOP

Lead Nurture Playbook

KEY (curious) tonality | (shuffle paper) audio cue | (let them answer) stage direction | [FILL IN] placeholder

THE JOB OF NURTURE

The job of pre-call nurture isn't to sell. The sell happens on the call. Pre-call is about showing up, building familiarity, and protecting the appointment so both partners are primed, present, and ready when the specialist joins.

Every booking that doesn't show is a booking that didn't close. The pitch can be perfect, the offer can be airtight, the rep can be sharp — none of that matters if the prospect isn't sitting on the other end at the right time, with their partner, with the bill in front of them, expecting the conversation. That's what this sequence is for. Every touch between booking and call exists for one reason: make sure they show up.

Equally important — the customer should walk into the call already feeling like they know us. By the time the specialist joins, the prospect has heard from us four or five times already, seen a real customer just like them, and had the appointment verbally confirmed. They're not meeting a stranger. They're sitting down with a company that's already shown up multiple times before the conversation even starts.

I Show rate is the leverage point. No show, no close.

TONE & APPROACH

Across every touchpoint in this document — calls, voicemails, SMS, emails — the tone is casual, friendly, familiar. You're a mate keeping them in the loop, not a corporate rep reading a script. Australian vernacular throughout. No jargon, no formality, no "Dear Sir/Madam" energy.

A few principles that apply everywhere:

- Use the customer's first name. Always.
- Keep SMS short. If it doesn't fit on one phone screen without scrolling, it's too long.
- Don't oversell on the resource. The job is familiarity, not another pitch.
- Day-before confirmation is the most important touch. Verbal confirmation lifts show rates massively. Don't skip it.
- Press for the bill. If they didn't send one on the booking call, chase it day-before. The specialist needs it to run real numbers — without it, the call's already half-broken.
- If they don't confirm, the call still happens. But expectation is they're a no-show. Don't let it derail the day.

MASTER SEQUENCE

The full nurture flow from booking to call. REP = relationship and sales-pressure touches. ADMIN = process and logistics touches. AUTO = automated SMS or email fired by the booking trigger.

Phase	Touchpoint	Trigger	Owner	Channel
1	On-Call Confirmation Prompt	During booking call	REP	Phone
1	Auto Confirmation Pack (SMS + email + calendar invite + resource link)	Within minutes of booking	AUTO	Multi
3	Day-Before Confirmation Call	Day before appointment	ADMIN / REP	Phone
3	Voicemail (if no answer)	Same call attempt	ADMIN / REP	Voicemail
3	Post-Voicemail SMS	Immediately after voicemail	ADMIN / REP	SMS
3	Bill Upload Chase	EOD if still missing	ADMIN / REP	SMS
4	Day-Of Reminder #1	24 hours before	AUTO	SMS
4	Day-Of Reminder #2	4 hours before	AUTO	SMS
4	Day-Of Reminder #3	15 minutes before	AUTO	SMS
5	Zoom Waiting Room Video	Zoom calls only	—	Video
6	No-Show Call Attempts	3 mins after start	REP	Phone
6	No-Show SMS	~12 mins after first call	REP	SMS
6	No-Show Email	Shortly after SMS	REP	Email
6	Reschedule Email	Final touch if no response	REP	Email

PHASE 1 — IMMEDIATE POST-BOOKING

The rep delivers the on-call confirmation prompt (1.1) live on the booking call. The booking trigger then fires the entire auto pack — SMS, email, calendar invite, and resource link all land in the customer's phone and inbox within minutes. One beat, multiple channels. Goal: lock the appointment in their calendar, get the resource into their hands, and set the expectation that this is real and they're expected to show up.

1.1 ON-CALL CONFIRMATION PROMPT

Owner: REP • Trigger: Said live during the booking call • Channel: Phone

Beautiful — so I've just sent the confirmation through to your phone and email now. (casual)

Did that come through okay? (curious) (wait while they check) We've been having a couple issues lately with bookings not actually coming through properly on our end, so just double check real quick. (casual, reasonable)

Sweet — just pop that into your calendar when you get a sec. (casual) We're pretty smashed at the moment with all the current [FUNDING / INCENTIVE], (obvious) but if anything comes up, no stress — just let us know and we'll work around you. (reasonable, genuine)

And by the way — you'll also get a quick [RESOURCE — testimonial video / info doc / case study / etc.] sent through with all that. (casual) Honestly, probably worth your time to take 5 minutes tonight or before the meeting with [PARTNER NAME IF KNOWN / YOUR PARTNER] to have a flick through. (reasonable) It'll help you just have a more productive convo and get the most out of your time chatting with us. (casual)

And just so you know — I'll personally put a note down for the [PROMO MENTIONED EARLIER], just to make sure you 100% get it, as I've given you my word. (genuine, sincere)

Sweet — speak to you both [DAY]. Have a good one. (friendly)

This prompt mirrors the rehash beats inside the D2D and Cold Call scripts — same active confirmation, same booking-issue check, same scarcity, same resource pitch, same personal-note beat. The point is consistency: every rep, every channel, lands the same finish. The customer hangs up the booking call already feeling locked in and looked after.

1.2 CONFIRMATION SMS

Owner: AUTOMATED • Trigger: Within minutes of booking • Channel: SMS

Hey [FIRST NAME], you're booked in with [COMPANY] for [DAY] at [TIME]. Quick look at us before the call so you know who you're chatting with: [RESOURCE LINK]. Talk soon.

1.3 CONFIRMATION EMAIL

Owner: AUTOMATED • Trigger: Within minutes of booking • Channel: Email

Subject: You're booked in for [DAY] at [TIME]

Hey [FIRST NAME],

You're locked in for [DAY] at [TIME]. Joining details: [ZOOM LINK / ADDRESS]

Quick look at us before the call: [RESOURCE LINK]

Two things to have ready:

— You and your [HUSBAND / WIFE / PARTNER] both free for the call.

— A pic of your latest power bill (front page is fine) — just text it through to [YOUR MOBILE] if you haven't already.

Any questions, just reply here or text me on [YOUR MOBILE].

Cheers,

[REP NAME]

[COMPANY]

PHASE 2 — THE RESOURCE LINK

This isn't a message template — it's a brief for what should sit at [RESOURCE LINK]. Each company plugs in their own version based on what content they actually have available.

What the resource is

A simple, mobile-first landing page or flyout-style document the customer can flick through in 2–3 minutes max. The job isn't to sell — it's to build familiarity before the call so the specialist isn't starting from scratch with skeptical strangers.

Priority hierarchy — what to send

Send the highest-tier asset the company actually has. Don't fake it — a generic flyer labelled as a testimonial does more damage than sending nothing.

1. Best — Demographic-matched customer testimonial. A real testimonial from a customer who matches the lead's profile. Young family lead → young family testimonial. Retiree lead → retiree testimonial. Regional lead → regional testimonial. This is the highest-conversion asset — they see someone exactly like them in their exact situation, before they've even spoken to a specialist.

2. Fallback — Short company intro video. 60–90 seconds. Founder talking, install footage, awards if any. Builds familiarity with the company even without the matched testimonial.

3. Last resort — Reviews / website link. Direct link to Google reviews or the company's testimonials page. Lowest effort, lowest impact, but better than sending nothing.

What it should NOT do

- Push to buy.
- Repeat the sales pitch.
- Have a "book now" CTA — they're already booked.
- Be a long PDF nobody opens.
- Look like a corporate brochure.

Tone & format

Same tone as the messages — casual, real, looks like an actual company that helps actual people. Photos of real customers and real installs beat stock imagery every time.

PHASE 3 — DAY-BEFORE CONFIRMATION PUSH

The most important touch in the whole pre-call sequence. Verbal confirmation the day before lifts show rates significantly. Goal: confirm both partners, confirm the resource has been opened, chase the bill if missing, and lock in the 45-minute window.

- | If only one touch in this entire SOP gets executed properly, make it this one.

3.1 DAY-BEFORE CONFIRMATION CALL

Owner: ADMIN preferred, REP fallback • Trigger: Day before appointment • Channel: Phone

Hey [FIRST NAME], it's [YOUR NAME] from [COMPANY] — got a quick sec? (casual, friendly)

Just calling to confirm everything for your call tomorrow at [TIME] with our specialist. (casual)

Couple of quick things...

First — is that time still all good? (curious, casual) Nothing's come up at your end? And you and your [HUSBAND / WIFE / PARTNER] are both still around for it?

(let them confirm)

Perfect. Just so you know, we block out about 45 minutes for these — most run shorter, around 20–30, but the specialist might be mid-breakdown showing you the numbers and you don't want to be cut short. So 45's all sweet. (reasonable)

Second — did you get a chance to have a flick through the link we sent you when you booked? (curious)

(if yes) Awesome. (casual)

(if no) No stress — I'll bump it through to you again now. (casual) Honestly worth a quick look, it's actually pretty relevant for the call tomorrow. Just take a look at it. (reasonable)

If the resource is a demographic-matched testimonial, get specific in the resend — explain why it's relevant to them. "It's actually a testimonial from a young family just like yours, so it's pretty relevant for the call tomorrow." Specificity drives them to actually click. Generic "worth a look" lines get ignored.

Easy. And last thing — looks like we've still got [/ haven't got] your power bill on file? (casual)

(if we have it) Perfect, all sorted. (casual)

(if we don't) No stress — if you can shoot a quick photo through to [YOUR MOBILE] tonight or first thing in the morning, that'd be ideal. Even just the front page is fine. (casual, reasonable)

Beautiful. Speak to you both tomorrow at [TIME]. Have a good one. (friendly)

On the bill check: admin should check the system before calling, not ask the customer. Sounding on top of it lifts trust. Running through a checklist out loud sounds like admin doesn't know what they're doing.

3.2 VOICEMAIL (if no answer)

Owner: ADMIN / REP • Trigger: No answer on confirmation call • Channel: Voicemail

Hey [FIRST NAME], [YOUR NAME] from [COMPANY] — just calling to confirm everything for your call tomorrow at [TIME]. Just need a quick yes from you that you and your [HUSBAND / WIFE / PARTNER] are both good to jump on, and a pic of your latest power bill if you haven't sent one through yet. Shoot me a text back on [YOUR MOBILE] when you get a sec. Cheers.

3.3 POST-VOICEMAIL SMS

Owner: ADMIN / REP • Trigger: Immediately after voicemail • Channel: SMS

Hey [FIRST NAME], [YOUR NAME] from [COMPANY] — just left you a voicemail. Need you to confirm so we can allocate a specialist's time for tomorrow at [TIME]. Quick yes that you and your [HUSBAND / WIFE / PARTNER] are both good to jump on, plus a pic of your power bill if you haven't sent one through yet. Cheers.

3.4 BILL UPLOAD CHASE (separate SMS)

Owner: ADMIN / REP • Trigger: EOD if still missing • Channel: SMS

Send only if the appointment is confirmed but the bill hasn't come through.

Hey [FIRST NAME], quick one — still need a pic of your latest power bill before tomorrow's call so the specialist can run the numbers properly. Front page is all we need, just shoot it through to [YOUR MOBILE] when you get a sec. Cheers.

PHASE 4 — DAY-OF SMS SEQUENCE

All three are automated. Short, friendly, no fluff. The job is presence and reminder — the heavy lifting was done in Phase 3.

4.1 24 HOURS BEFORE

Owner: AUTOMATED • Trigger: 24 hours before appointment • Channel: SMS

Hey [FIRST NAME], quick reminder you're booked in with [COMPANY] tomorrow at [TIME]. Make sure you and your [HUSBAND / WIFE / PARTNER] are both around. Talk soon.

4.2 4 HOURS BEFORE

Owner: AUTOMATED • Trigger: 4 hours before appointment • Channel: SMS

Hey [FIRST NAME], you're on with us in 4 hours at [TIME]. Joining link / details: [ZOOM LINK / ADDRESS]. See you both then.

4.3 15 MINUTES BEFORE

Owner: AUTOMATED • Trigger: 15 minutes before appointment • Channel: SMS

Hey [FIRST NAME], jumping on in 15 — see you and your [HUSBAND / WIFE / PARTNER] at [TIME]. Link: [ZOOM LINK / ADDRESS].

PHASE 5 — ON THE CALL

The pre-conversation moment. Goal: prime the customer with familiarity and social proof so the specialist walks into a warm conversation, not a cold one.

5.1 ZOOM WAITING ROOM VIDEO

Channel: Zoom only • Plays while customer waits for specialist to join

The video that plays while the customer waits for the specialist to join the Zoom should match the customer demographic where possible. Same priority hierarchy as the resource link.

Priority order

1. Best — Customer testimonial matched to demographic (young family → young family testimonial, retiree → retiree, regional → regional, etc.)
2. Fallback — Generic customer testimonial reel (mix of demographics).
3. Last resort — Company brand video / awards / install footage.

Why it works

The customer sees someone like them, in their exact situation, before the rep even joins. That builds familiarity, lowers skepticism, and softens defensiveness. The rep walks into a primed conversation instead of a cold one.

Length

60–120 seconds, on loop. Long enough to land the message, short enough that it doesn't get stale if the specialist joins immediately.

5.2 IN-PERSON EQUIVALENT

None. The rep just shows up. The familiarity work was done in Phase 1's resource link and Phase 3's day-before call — by the time the rep is on the doorstep, the prospect already knows who's coming.

PHASE 6 — NO-SHOW / RESCHEDULE

Tone across this whole phase: non-judgemental, life happens, easy reschedule. Not guilt-trippy, not desperate. The vibe is "no stress, when you're ready." A pushy no-show follow-up burns the lead permanently. A relaxed one keeps the door open.

6.1 NO-SHOW CALL ATTEMPTS

Owner: REP • Trigger: 3 minutes after start time • Channel: Phone

No script — just keep calling. Multiple attempts. Calm voice if they pick up, no edge in the tone. They're not in trouble, you're just trying to catch them before the day gets away.

6.2 NO-SHOW SMS

Owner: REP • Trigger: ~12 minutes after first call attempt • Channel: SMS

Hey [FIRST NAME], [YOUR NAME] from [COMPANY] — was meant to jump on with you and your [HUSBAND / WIFE / PARTNER] at [TIME] but couldn't get hold of you. All good, life happens. Shoot me a text back when you get a sec and we'll find another time that works. Cheers.

6.3 NO-SHOW EMAIL

Owner: REP • Trigger: Shortly after the SMS • Channel: Email

Subject: Missed you today — let's find another time

Hey [FIRST NAME],

Tried to jump on with you and your [HUSBAND / WIFE / PARTNER] at [TIME] today but couldn't get hold of you. Totally fine, life happens.

When you've got a sec, just reply here or shoot me a text on [YOUR MOBILE] and we'll find another time that suits you both.

Cheers,

[REP NAME]

[COMPANY]

6.4 RESCHEDULE EMAIL

Owner: REP • Trigger: Final touch if no response to SMS or first email • Channel: Email

Subject: Want to lock in a new time?

Hey [FIRST NAME],

Haven't heard back since we missed each other the other day — no stress.

If you're still keen to have a look at how the [REBATE / INITIATIVE / PROGRAM] works for your place, just grab a new time here: [RESCHEDULE LINK]. Takes 30 seconds.

Or if life's gotten in the way and you're not in a position to look at it right now, just let me know and I'll leave you alone. No dramas either way.

Cheers,
